ELSEVIER

ISA Transactions, Vol. 36, No. 4, pp. 357–358, 1997
Published by Elsevier Science Ltd
Printed in The Netherlands

Author index of volume 36

Abbas, A., A new set of controller tuning relations 183–187
Alcozer, S., J.P. Segovia and D. Sbarbaro, Using higher order CMAC to improve the performance of control valves 65– 70
Anderson, K.F., The new current loop: NASA's successor to the Wheatstone bridge 351–356
Applequist, G., O. Samikoglu, J. Pekny and G. Reklaitis, Issues in the use, design and evolution of process scheduling and planning systems 81–121

Bastiaan, H.K., Process model and recipe structure, the conceptual design for a flexible batch plant 249–255
Bluvshtein, I.G., On-line calibrated measuring systems and their characteristics 167–181
Bolton, R., Plant information at the desktop-exploiting corporate IT infrastructure 239–248
Boriani, D.V., Formal specification methods in engineering design 123–129
Boriani, D.V., Object-oriented development of control software 131–138
Bristol, E.H., Batch object modeling and language 197–207
Brombacher, A.C., see Goble, W.M. 345–350
Bukowski, J.V., see Goble, W.M. 345–350
Byeon, H.W. and J.L. Ulrey, Designing a standard thermal power plant for daily startup/shutdown: the HP Bypass control and safety function 71– 77

Connelly, C.S., Lack of planning in alarm system configuration is, in essence, planning to fail 219–225
Converse, J.G., Real time validation of on-line measurements utilizing internal standard introduction 151–158
Cooper, D.J., see Shridhar, R. 273–280
Crowl, T.E. and L.C. Minnich Jr, Configuration techniques for a validated plant 209–218

DePriest, M.S., Network security considerations in TCP/IP-based manufacturing automation 37– 48
Dieck, R.H., Measurement uncertainty models 29– 35
Dougall, D.J., Applications and benefits of real-time I/O simulation for PLC and PC control systems 305–311
Dove, A.P., L.O. Jundt and J.M. Lucas, Using an object-oriented database as a repository for process configuration data 339–343

Gilbert, A.F., see Natarajan, K. 139–149
Goble, W.M., J.V. Bukowski and A.C. Brombacher, How diagnostic coverage improves safety in programmable electronic systems 345–350

Jokinen, P.A., Sharing engineering design knowledge and delivering proven practices in engineering organizations 257–266
Jundt, L.O., see Dove, A.P. 339–343

Kappelhoff, R., Integration of ERP to the final control elements 229–238

La Fauci, J., PLC or DCS: selection and trends 21– 28
Liang, J.M., see Rollins, D.K. 293–304
Lucas, J.M., see Dove, A.P. 339–343

Minnich Jr, L.C., see Crowl, T.E. 209–218

Natarajan, K. and A.F. Gilbert, On direct PID controller tuning based on finite number of frequency response data 139–149
Nelson, P.R. and R.S. Shull, Organizing for an initial implementation of S88 189–195

Ochiai, S., Calculating process control parameters from steady state operating data 313–320

Pekny, J., see Applequist, G. 81–121

Reklaitis, G., see Applequist, G. 81–121
Rollins, D.K., J.M. Liang and P. Smith, Accurate simplistic predictive modeling of nonlinear dynamic processes 293–304
Rollins, D.L., see Schnelle, P.D. 281–292

Samaras, N.S. and M.A. Simaan, Two-point boundary temperature control of hot strip via water cooling 11– 20
Samikoglu, O., see Applequist, G. 81–121
Sanders, F.F., Key factors for successfully implementing advanced control 267–272
Sbarbaro, D., see Alcozer, S. 65– 70
Schnelle, P.D. and D.L. Rollins, Industrial Model Predictive Control technology as applied to continuous polymerization processes 281–292
Schumann, A., SAP-R/3 in process industries: expectations, experiences and outlooks 161–166
Segovia, J.P., see Alcozer, S. 65– 70
Shridhar, R., A novel tuning strategy for multivariable model predictive control 273–280
Shull, R.S., see Nelson, P.R. 189–195
Simaan, M.A., see Samaras, N.S. 11– 20
Smith, P., see Rollins, D.K. 293–304

Ulrey, J.L., see Byeon, H.W. 71– 77

Wade, H.L., Inverted decoupling: a neglected technique 3– 10

Zhang, J.-G., Using advanced optical multiple-access techniques in high-speed avionic local area networks for future aircraft applications. Part I: optical code-division multiple-access networks 49– 64
Zhang, J.-G., Using advanced optical multiple-access techniques in high-speed avionic local area networks for future aircraft applications. Part II: Optical time-division multiple-access networks 321–338